Pre-Summit Reading

The volume of knowledge and information related to bacteria and water quality is significant. To further enrich each attendee's experience, as well as support the goals of the summit itself, a curated pre-summit reading list has been developed. Certain documents may be directly discussed in a particular agenda item (if so, it is noted on the reading list). Other resources may potentially be added prior to or after the summit.

Virtual Meeting Links

The live meeting links for each day of the summit are posted here: CalEPA Public Webcasts.

Scroll down to find the California Bacteria Summit and ensure you have selected the applicable date (as there are three days for the summit). Note that while the links are posted, they will not be live until the event itself.

Virtual Viewing and Participation

Thank you for investing your time to stay informed and engaged. We are grateful that so many people will be able to view the summit remotely. Due to constraints of utilizing both remote viewing and in-person formats, virtual viewers will not have access to break out rooms, but the reflections from those groups will be reported out and available for all to hear. As the summit is just the first step in a long process to collectively achieve our shared goals, it is important that you are engaged. We look forward to working with everyone.
